Minneapolis, MN – *The F Word: Stories of Forgiveness exhibit, a program of London based, The Forgiveness Project has traveled the globe sharing stories of forgiveness, restorative justice, redemption, reconciliation and healing. The exhibition is a provoking collection of arresting images and personal narratives exploring forgiveness in the face of atrocity. “Forgiveness cuts public opinion down the middle like a guillotine,” says The Forgiveness Project’s founder, Marina Cantacuzino “it’s a word that inspires and affronts in equal measure.”

This collaboration is incredible,” shared Louisa Hext, North America Coordinator, “This powerful exhibit is rarely in the Twin Cities, so it’s a great opportunity to see it while it’s here. There’s such pain and suffering in our world. These stories are highly personal and offer diverse and complex perspectives of forgiveness”.

“I’m grateful to collaborate with Louisa to share these incredible stories,” says Ephraim Eusebio, “My goal is bring exposure to the exhibit within and around the communities of Modus Locus, South Minneapolis, and beyond.”

In conjunction with The F Word: Stories of Forgiveness, Modus Locus will partner with Aslan Institute, Peak Therapy Institute and consultants next to bring speakers, classes, workshops and film to complement the themes of forgiveness, reconciliation and redemption presented in the exhibit.

Opening reception: Saturday, March 17, 2018 between 6:00 - 9:00 p.m.

Modus Locus - 3500 Bloomington Avenue S., Minneapolis 55407
